

With spikes in our veins, pipes calling our names, and straws showing no shame we carried our load down the deep dark road.

People who were once on our journey our now lifeless on a gurney.

This disease does not discriminate, it will take any one that it can incriminate.

Recovery is our only option of survival from this internal malady inside our brains.

When we choose this option for ourselves we open all lanes.

Recovery offers a daily reprieve from the evil that once had us captured and almost dead.

We have survived and have made it to the shore so we can be led.

Once we are led and get further along we can sing to others our daily song.

No addict should have to die from this disease without recovery as an option to survive.

Now that our load is lighter we can show others how to be a strong fighter.

We are all warriors against the drugs that have destroyed us and staying focused in recovery daily for our medicine is a must!
